Pioneer Orland Resident Dies After Short Illness

Mrs. Katherine Kruspe, nee Uthe, a pioneer resident of Orland died at her home in Orland Park October 8, following a short illness. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday, October 12 in the Christ Lutheran church, Orland Park, with the Rev. A. Lach officiating. Burial made in the Trinity Lutheran cemetery near Tinley Park.

Mrs. Kruspe was born in Orland Oct. 12, 1865 and the day on which she was laid to rest would have been her 78th birthday.

In 1881 she was united in marriage with Alfred Kruspe, who died in 1924. She is survived by 8 children: Charles, John and William of Chicago, Christ of New Lenox, Herman of Orland Park, Pauline Denny, of Richmond, Ind., and Maymie Estland and Sarah Moore of Orland Park; one brother Phillip Uthe of Orland Township and one sister Mrs. Hannah Schilling of Brainerd, Minn. 13 grand children and 6 great grand children. Two children died in infancy.

Mrs. Kruspe had spent her entire life in Orland and leaves a host of relatives and friends who mourn her passing.

Earl Moore, a son in law, came from the Naval Base at San Bruno, Cal., to attend the funeral.

Orland Park's First Druggist Taken by Death

Death claimed another Orland Park resident when Mr. Herman Buge, well known druggist of the community, died Tuesday, October 12 after a lingering illness at the age of 70 years.

Funeral services were conducted at the Schmaedeke funeral home, on Friday, October 15 with Rev. Henry Rompel of the Methodist church in charge. Burial was made in Mt. Emblem cemetery near Elmhurst.

Mr. Buge is survived by his widow, Mrs. Frieda Buge, nee Blind, a daughter Mrs. Florence Fennerty, Chicago, two sons, Irving of California and Dr. Donald Buge a physician at the Seneca shipyards.

Mr. Buge was born in Chicago March 7, 1873 and has been a druggist for half a century. He at one time owned a large drug store on the South side for many years, but because of many demands made upon him, he disposed of that drug store about 10 years ago and sought a more peaceful life of a rural community.

Consequently, Mr. Buge located in Orland Park and opened the first drug store that village ever had.

Mr. Buge belonged to the old school of druggists, one of those who conducted a drug store where medicines were compounded, prescriptions filled and medical supplies were sold. Where the druggist was the confidential advisor to sick and near sick in the community. During his stay in Orland Park Mr. Buge won the confidence of the community by his professional skill, his kind understanding and his determination to be a druggist and not a restaurant or variety store owner. His passing is mourned by the community.

WILL RETURN IMPROPERLY ADDRESSED LETTERS

The War Department in co-operation with the Post Office Department, will return all mail for soldiers overseas which is improperly addressed, it was announced by Major General H. S. Aurnand, Commanding General, Sixth Service Command, Army Service Force, with headquarters in Chicago.

Major Kenneth Donnelly, Sixth Service Command Postal Officer, explained that:

"Effective October 1, 1943 all insufficiently and incorrectly addressed mail and second class publications received at ports of embarkation will be returned to the senders without directory service being given. In the case of publications of the second class, only the address portions of wrappers will be returned to publishers."

Mail addressed to overseas Army personnel must show, in addition to the name and address of the sender, the soldier's name, rank, Army serial number, branch of service organization APO number and post office address through which the mail is to be routed. An example of the proper address:

Pvt. Joe Doe (19743682), Co. F, 167th Infantry, APO 810, care postmaster, New York.

According to Major Donnelly, mail to Army personnel within the continental United States should be similarly addressed, except that the inscriptions "care postmaster" should be omitted.

Paratrooper Over Italy

By Frank Herkness

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with The American Magazine.)

We jumped at midnight. For 30 minutes the jump door had been open, and the lieutenant, our jump master, had been standing there looking out into the moonlight and waiting for the red-light flash which meant to stand up and hook on chutes.

We had been flying a long time—much longer than actually needed to come from the African camp to Sicily. But, to throw the enemy off, we did not fly there directly.

Maybe there will never be such a night again. I've heard that 2,000 planes and 4,000 boats took part in the invasion, and I can believe it. The sky around us was filled with cargo transport planes, all loaded with paratroops, all heading for the same place, like a billion bees.

All of us were excited. For exactly one year and three days we'd been training for this, our first battle action. Three days before, we'd celebrated the anniversary by killing three beef cattle for dinner. And now the target was a few minutes ahead of us. We passed over the Sicilian coast and knew it wouldn't be long now.

The red light flashed. All of us stood up, fastened our chutes to the jump cable, and waited. Waited for what seemed hours for the green jump signal from the pilot. The plane was rocking from side to side, much worse than it ever did in the 15 practice jumps we'd made—I still don't know why.

Directly ahead and behind us we could see faintly glowing green lights—formation lights of planes ahead and behind.

Lieutenant Disappears

The pilot's light suddenly flashed. Officers always jump first. The lieutenant yelled, "Let's go!" and leaped out into the moonlight. We never saw him again.

We followed him instantly. The plane emptied in ten seconds. I was the last to jump. The plane seemed to be going unusually fast. My chute snapped open with a terrific jerk, and my carbine disappeared. So the only weapon I had was a long trench knife.

I should have been able to see all the other chutes in our party, but I could only see one, and realized something had gone wrong. Plans called for us to be dropped at 600 feet, with the plane slowed down to almost stalling speed—about 100 miles an hour. This was so we would spend less vulnerable time floating down, and also so we would be close together when we hit.

As it turned out, we were dropped at full speed—almost 200 miles an hour—and from 1,500 feet. That's why I could see only one other chute. I kept my eyes glued on it and pulled at my shrouds to follow it.

I landed hard but safe in an orchard. The rest of the boys landed nearby. Comparing notes, we were convinced that we had been dropped in a comparatively strange country, nowhere near our target area. Actually, we were at least 50 miles off—some time I'd like to know why.

This was all orchard country, which seemed dotted with enemy troops, forcing us to move carefully. There was spasmodic firing everywhere, but we managed to avoid the enemy. We spotted the main road and headed for it. We had crept along it about 500 yards when we were challenged. It was another American, posted there in the bushes to lead anybody to a nearby farmhouse which was being used as an assembly point and first-aid station. We went in.

From prisoners we learned that we had landed a few miles from Avola, a coastal town which the British even then were attacking. There was a little hill about 200 yards from the farmhouse where, as soon as it got light, we could see the whole scene. I'll never forget it. British landings being made against airplane and artillery opposition. We could help those boys by hitting the enemy in the rear. That's what we did. Maybe it was a good thing we landed where we did. I think we did more valuable work than we would have done if we had been dropped right on the bull's eye.

From the hilltop, as far as I could see, British ships were lying just offshore, with lines of little boats moving back and forth, bringing in more British Tommies. They were getting plenty of enemy attention.

From the hills, Italian artillery was going full blast. Shells and bombs were bursting among the ships, but the little boats kept coming anyway.

It was about eight in the morning when we reached Avola and it took us until 2:30 in the afternoon to advance a little more than a mile toward the town square.

Survive Parachute Jump Over Jungle

These civilians got a real taste of battlefield hardships when they jumped from their damaged plane over a Burma jungle. They tramped for 26 days through Burma before reaching safety in India. Nazi Gun Captured During Allied Advance

After a terrific baptism of fire on the Italian mainland, troops of the Fifth army enlarged their bridgehead, pushed inland and seized many important Italian industrial and military centers including Naples, the third largest Italian city. Where Japs Lost

Bitter battles were reported in this area for possession of the port of Finschhafen and Wewak harbor. When the Japanese attempted to re-enforce bases in this sector, Allied air fighters destroyed 58 enemy planes, seven surface vessels, and many supply barges. Many enemy planes were caught on the ground.

The Mail Goes Thru

Despite rain, snow, and even elevator strikes—the mail goes through. A delivery man plods up the stairs of Rockefeller Center, N. Y. during a recent elevator strike.

TURKEYS AND THE ARMY

The army is beginning to wonder if it hasn't over-extended itself on the business of turkey. It has ruled that civilians may not buy turkeys for their Thanksgiving or Christmas dinners—or for next Sunday's dinner, for that matter—until the army has acquired 12 million pounds for the armed forces overseas.

That sounded all right, until somebody in the quartermaster corps began figuring out what you could do with 12 million pounds of turkeys. For generous portions, you can figure that 100 pounds of undressed turkey will feed 100 men.

The number of men in the armed forces overseas, including army, navy, and marines, is around two million. Allow each man a pound of turkey for Thanksgiving and another for Christmas, and you reach the total of four million pounds.

But the amount reserved for this purpose is three times four million, or 12 million pounds.

When certain food experts in the quartermaster corps realized this, they started to do some fast telephoning. When last heard from, they still didn't know what two million men could do with 12 million pounds of turkey—except eat 'em.

NAZI PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE

Beware of false rumors about Germany. The Germans, masters of psychological warfare, are watching every opportunity to take advantage of American credulity. They know that Americans are optimistic by nature and that we are prone to believe any story about miraculous victories or fortunate events.

Apparently it was this method of psychological warfare which prompted the reports that Hitler had been deposed in favor of military authorities.

It has now been definitely established that no such event took place. State department officials now say flatly that the whole thing was a false report, from beginning to end. It was so generally reported, however, that they believe it must have been prompted by Germany. The motive in such a case would have been to make Americans rush to the conclusion that Germany was tottering and the war was not far from finished. This would have the effect of weakening our bond drives and similar efforts.

Note: The Nazi news report of Hitler's ousting came via Spain.

ARMY'S FAVORITE FOODS

Since the Truman committee's investigation of food waste in the army, the quartermaster corps has been as frugal as a Dutch housewife. Elaborate studies have been made of what the soldiers eat and what they leave on the plate, with the idea of cutting down the percentage of garbage.

After watching the eating habits of 16,000 soldiers at Chanute Field, Ill., the quartermaster corps gave each dish a rating, according to its popularity.

Roast chicken and apple pie rated 100. So did roast duck and roast ham. But creamed ham rated only 55. (QMC dietician Mary I. Barber explains: "Not many men like messed up food. Artemus Ward said: 'When I eat hash, I like to know what I'm eating.'")

No matter what you may do to butter up spinach, it remains spinach and the soldiers gave it a rating of 41. It was just about the lowest of all.

NO TIRES FOR RUBBER CZAR

Col. Bradley Dewey, who succeeded Big Bill Jeffers as rubber director, says he wishes he could get his hands on a set of synthetic tires. He is now in charge of the program which promises to produce 30 million synthetic tires by the end of next year, but he is not able to try synthetic tires on his own car.

"I wish," says Colonel Dewey, "that OPA would let me have a set of the new tires. I'd like to try them out. I understand they skid less than natural rubber. Not that I drive at skidding speeds, mind you, but I'd like to see what they would do."

"Some of the taxi drivers out in Akron have new synthetic tires, and they swear by them. But I'd like to see what they would do for me." Reason for Dewey's inability to get tires is that though he is in charge of the entire program, he is obliged to apply for tires through OPA, like any other citizen. And since his present tires are reasonably good, he can't get any new synthetic tires.

MERRY GO ROUND

A high, air-minded war department official says the length of the war depends on the weather this winter. If the weather is favorable for flying, the war in Europe might be over before next summer.

Brig. Gen. Glen C. Jamison, of the Thirteenth air force, South Pacific, pays high tribute to Negro engineers who built roads, airfields, and living quarters in the Solomons and New Hebrides, using native construction materials and thus saving shipping from U. S.

Frame to Use for Storing Folding Cot

SOME people have a talent for making guests comfortable and they are not always the people with big houses and what used to be called a spare room.

This sketch shows an ingenious frame under which a folding cot may be stored in a hall or other out-of-the-way corner. The frame has a full skirted cover of denim trimmed in bands of flowered chintz. On top there stands a medicine closet with feet made by gluing spools in place.

NOTE—This sketch is from BOOK 7 of the series prepared for readers on making things for the home. It also contains sketches and directions for 31 other things to make from odds and ends on hand and inexpensive new materials. Booklet costs 15 cents. Send request for booklet direct to:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Success of the Dutch in transplanting the quinine tree from Peru to Java helped encourage interest in the development of rubber plantations in the Far East in the early 1870's.

With all the discouragements of rubber and gasoline restrictions, automobile registrations at the end of 1942 were only 5 per cent lower than in 1941, a record year. Commercial vehicle registrations were down 5.5 per cent.

It is estimated that at one time there were between 300 million and 500 million wild rubber trees in the Amazon Valley and that less than 10 per cent have been tapped to date.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

BLACK SOMBRERO

Margaret Nichols owned some property in joint tenancy with Kitty Chatfield. When Kitty died it meant $200,000 to her. She explains the situation to her friend, Barry. Elsa Chatfield had been disinherited at Aunt Kitty's death, but was glad to be freed from a tyrannical aunt who had imposed many restrictions. Huntoon Rogers, a detective, asks what Aunt Kitty died of, and is told an overdose of morphine. The detective meets Reed Barton and discusses the matter of Kitty Chatfield and Elsa. He suspected that Kitty Chatfield was murdered although the police hold to the opinion that it was suicide. There were no fingerprints except her own on the hypodermic syringe she used.

CHAPTER III

"But Kitty talked. Lord, how she talked! Sam, thank God, was a human sort, however; he just laughed at her and went on loving his wife. And then Elsa's mother, to Kitty's great relief, passed from the scene. Pneumonia, I think, although it's hard to remember everything. Sam didn't remarry, however, until after he set himself up again in Mexico; and then it was to Berta, the Mexican. Berta was the last straw to Kitty Chatfield. Berta, of course, is all right. I like her."

"It's time Margaret was getting here. Sam Chatfield and his Mexican wife, Berta, are coming too. They're up from Mazatlan for a few days," he said. "I'm hungry. How about you two?"

"I could eat now," Huntoon Rogers said.

"Perhaps it is clearer now about the will, Barry," said Dwight, settling back in his chair once more. "When Aunt Kitty cut her niece off with only a year's income from the estate, knowing quite well that Elsa would spend all of it—which she did—it was a deliberate thrust at a vital spot, so she thought."

"Aunt Kitty never looked upon Elsa as a Chatfield. Elsa resembled very much her mother. What's more to the point she was not awed by the antiquity of the Chatfields; she refused to kowtow to the great god Family. Which of course did not endear her to Aunt Kitty. Toward the last as bitter a hatred existed between those two as you could well imagine. Elsa, of course, was not to blame for it. Kitty Chatfield was older; her neck was stiff."

"But is that enough to make the two hate each other the way they did?" I asked.

"There was the baby," "Who was the child's father?" inquired Rogers.

"That has never been disclosed." A boy came out upon the veranda to inform us that Margaret and the others had arrived.

Dwight Nichols has a kindly face. Dwight is not yet forty, but his is the face of a benevolent philosopher. His brown eyes are benign, soft, almost feminine in their compassion for his fellow man. There is a quiet, gentle smile constantly about his lips; his whole countenance, in fact, is lovable and sweet. His is a face widely known, for it has been seen often in the press—a face of charm, inviting to confidence, winning, friendly.

That's why the devilish caricature in the shop window struck so forcibly upon my attention. It was the eye that did the trick; the caricaturist had provided him with an eye cunning, sly, wicked. It made over the whole countenance of Dwight Nichols; it made a rascal of him, whereas he is an upright man, a sportsman who has written many books of life afield, and a man extraordinarily fond of his wife and home.

And, heavens! there was myself beside Dwight, my own inconsequential physiognomy. I blushed as I stood there on the sidewalk, oblivious to the afternoon crowd that swarmed along the boulevard. Was I such a villain as that? Was I so old?

And, heavens again! Beside me in the window, overwhelmingly, so huge and coarse that at first I had not seen it, was Jimmy the Cheese.

In other shop windows up the boulevard that mild April afternoon I encountered still more caricatures by the same clever hand. There was one of Huntoon Rogers ludicrous in the extreme; the thinning hair on top of his head was all but gone; his ears stood out like flapping wings, and his nose was twice its already generous size.

"Let me see that thing in the window," I requested of the clerk. For full of mounting spirits I had returned to the first window out of breath, thoroughly reckless now. I pointed to my own likeness. The man was hesitant. "I want to look at it. I want to make sure who did it. It's me. Don't you see?"

He looked startled for a moment, as if he were trying to divine whether or not I intended to sue him, then got the caricature from the window and laid it on the counter. Eagerly I scanned it for a signature, and there modestly in the lower right-hand corner was the word I had not been able to see from the sidewalk. It was "Elsa."

"Let me take this for a little while," I requested. The clerk shrugged his shoulders in a way that said no. "Here!" I pulled out my billfold and dropped some money on the counter. "I know the girl who did that. I want to borrow it long enough to take it over and raise heck with her."

"What if you don't come back?" "Then keep the money. It's more than the darned thing is worth."

"All right," he said. I rolled the thing lightly, made my exit and bent my steps toward the apartment on the heights above the boulevard.

Elsa was not at home, but I found Reed Barton on her doorstep. He was knocking loudly like a desperate man upon the panel of the door as I ascended the last flight of stairs, and left off only when I poked my head within view. He was carrying flowers, which few men like to be seen doing however much they may esteem the intended recipient thereof. He sought at first to hide them from me; hence it was not difficult to see that his case was urgent.

"She's not at home," he announced with an air that indicated Elsa's absence amounted almost to a personal affront. "I thought sure she'd be here, Barry."

"Just leave the flowers on her doorstep. I'll tell her you called the next time I see her," I said. He laughed and brought the flowers around into view, drew a fat green pencil from his pocket, scribbled something upon the white paper and snapped the flowers to the doorknob with a rubber band.

"Look at that! Look at that!"

"She's the most exasperating person I know, Barry," he said. "But what's she done to you?" For the first time he realized I had reason for being there. The light was dim, but I unrolled the caricature and presented it.

He took the caricature from me, and placing it against the wall scribbled on the edge: "Dear Liar. Barry is a wild man about this. I think it's rotten too—Reed." He chuckled, proceeding to fasten it in the door jamb. "Tell her when you see her, Barry, that I called to tell her goodbye. It's rather sudden, you know. The Chief didn't let me know until yesterday. I'm on my way this evening. Come on. I've got to go over to my hangout now. There's not much time left."

We went down the stairs and set off on foot, for it was not far.

"Where are you going and why?" I inquired as we reached the boulevard and jostled along through the crowd.

"Mexico—Mazatlan. Because the Chief says to go."

"Mazatlan! Why, that's incredibly removed from the Hollywood scene."

"Yes, I know."

"But what for?"

"The Chief says I'm to report at the Mazatlan office for permanent work. Take charge of things down there."

We swung on up the boulevard. As we passed the shop window, we halted to gaze in at the caricatures of Dwight and Chesebro, and again farther up the boulevard at still other caricatures. Near Highland the sidewalk became impassable. We endeavored to worm our way through, for Reed's hotel was just beyond the corner. The first intimation that it was more than a mere congestion of pedestrians came with the sound of a man's voice—a reedy, husky voice—shouting:

"Look at that! Look at that!"

We pressed our way into the crowd and beheld at the center of the throng a hatless figure, red of face and vociferous to the point of apoplexy. "Is it me?" he demanded plaintively of the gaping crowd. "Is it me?" He pointed at a shop window wherein I could make out a group of caricatures, the origin of which was quite apparent. I recognized the fellow, a minor comedian; he was a bit player who was cast in an occasional picture.

I don't know why a second figure on the sidewalk should catch my eye at the moment unless it were that the prescient monitor within me had again directed my eyes into the misty pool of future time to that terrifying experience at Mazatlan. For the man was an utter stranger. He was inactive, standing idly by, apparently not greatly moved by the indignity that had been done him. The man was smoking a frayed cigar. He was hatless, dressed in an incredible sports coat, brown slacks and a pink and white check shirt that would have affronted the esthetic sense of a moron.

"I won't stand for it!" bellowed the comedian. "I won't! Give me a brick, somebody. Where's a brick?"

I don't know where the brick came from. I suspected, but with no reason whatever, that the man with the frayed cigar was guilty.

"You know," laughed Reed Barton, as we rolled down town to the union station, "I wish I could stay and see how this comes out."

"I'll tell you how it comes out when I see you at Mazatlan," I said. "I've arranged to go with Dwight and Margaret on their cruise. Leaving in a week or so."

"There is more than a fine talent here," said Dwight, his voice having a judicial sound in the quiet of the ship's lounge on the Orizaba. The thin smoke of his cigarette ascended through the lighted area made by the green-shaded light. He rustled the papers on the table, looking at first one reproduction of Elsa's caricatures and then at another. There was a full page spread of Elsa's caricatures in the rotogravure section, besides others in the news section. Elsa had made a hit; she was being hailed as a find.

"Oh, hello, Chesebro. Come in!" Dwight, looking past me into the passageway beyond the open door of the lounge, suddenly called out. I turned to behold Jimmy the Cheese on the threshold. We shook hands all around, and Dwight waved Chesebro to a chair. "We were just talking about Elsa," he explained when we had settled. "About her mugs, as she calls them."

A voice broke in upon us as we sat there in the lounge, a strange voice, slightly blurred in its tone and smacking of New York in its inflections.

"If you're speaking of Elsa, I brought her out. Just now."

"We were, yes," Dwight rose questioning to his feet and made as if to move toward the doorway whence came the voice.

"Don't bother to get up," said the voice heartily. "Elsa and I just got here a few minutes ago. The steward helped us on board, and I saw you fellows in here so I came on in."

"That's quite right," Dwight assured the man. "I'm glad you did. My name's Nichols."

"Glad to meet you, Nichols. My name's Rumble. George Rumble."

"This is Mr. Chesebro, and Mr. Madison."

"Glad to meet you both," said Mr. Rumble, shaking hands swiftly with Chesebro and then with me. "Don't believe I've ever heard of you two before." He helped himself unasked to cigarettes and sat down on the corner of the table. "Nice little boat you've got here, Nichols. Looks like a swell traveler of the ocean blue."

"Yes, thank you. I'm glad you could come down and be with us tonight."

"Thanks. I always get a kick out of going-away parties—especially when it's on a boat. Understand you're starting to Mexico tonight."

"Yes. We're sailing about midnight."

At the moment I was speechless. I observed Dwight endeavoring to adjust the newcomer to his surroundings and us to him. It was plain that he was totally unexpected. His statement, however, that he had come with Elsa made him authentic. But, as I say, I was devoid of speech. For I recognized the man. He was minus the frayed cigar he'd had when he so calmly looked on at the frantic actions of the outraged comedian. His black curly hair was oiled down to his head, and he was now smoking one of Dwight's cigarettes. Otherwise he was the same.

"How did you come down?" Dwight was asking.

"Come down?" repeated Rumble, dislodging a fragment of tobacco from his tongue with a sharp noise of his lips. "We came in Elsa's car. She's got a good car now, and a chauffeur. I helped her pick out the car. And I know the chauffeur's okeh. He's a nice boy. Cousin of a friend of mine. I got him the job."

"That's interesting," said Dwight. Chesebro had shrunk into himself at the advent of Mr. Rumble; he sat like a huge, reddish-brown, silent, malignant oyster. I'm sure that if it were the gentlemanly thing to do he would have bitten Mr. Rumble.

"What's your line, Chesebro?" demanded Mr. Rumble, turning upon Jimmy the Cheese. For a moment there was no reply. I could fancy he was struggling with himself, then he hissed, "Mining investments."

"Investments? Oh, yes. I never had anything to invest myself, but that's a good line, I guess. Me, I'm in—"

But whatever it was that he was in had to wait for the moment, for Elsa called to us from the threshold.

JESUS AND THE SABBATH

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:8-11; Isaiah 58:13, 14; Mark 2:23-3:6.

GOLDEN TEXT—And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath.—Mark 2:27.

The sabbath was essentially a day of rest and worship; hence the principles which surrounded it and directed its life may be applied to our day of rest, which is the first day of the week—the Lord's day.

That word "rest" sounds a little strange in this busy world of ours, and yet it is an important one. It means quiet for the struggling one, calm for the troubled, repose for the weary, tranquility for the disturbed, cessation of labor for the worn-out one.

God in His infinite wisdom saw that without rest man would soon destroy himself, and He made provision for one day in seven when labor should cease and man should be free for that recreation of soul and body which should fit him for the labor of the week.

Our lesson answers two important questions about our rest day, namely, Why? and How?

I. Why We Keep a Day of Rest (Exod. 20:8-11; Isa. 58:13, 14).

The chief reason is that God commands it. One day out of seven is for our re-creation by rest and worship. That should be sufficient to cause His people to "remember" the day "to keep it holy."

Doubtless it is true that essential war work and related activities must be carried on, even on Sunday. God did not forbid works of necessity. But even though there is this need, who will deny that many use Sunday for work that is not essential—and countless others devote it to godless pleasure.

Notice that the day of rest was to be not only for the family, but also for servants and for visitors. The employer who unnecessarily operates his factory or office on Sunday violates this commandment. Note also that the man who is to rest on the seventh day is supposed to work on the six days.

The precept of Exodus 20 is enforced by the promise of Isaiah 58. The man who delights in keeping God's commandment regarding the day of rest, will find that God delights in and honors him. Both men and nations have found this to be true.

II. How We Keep a Day of Rest (Mark 2:23-3:6).

The formalists of Christ's day, the Pharisees, had overlooked the heart of God's law and the holy living which it was intended to produce, and had bound up even the observance of the sabbath (which was intended to be a day of rest and gladness) in such a mass of technical "thou shalt nots" that it was a day of fear. They had a false outward profession of worship and had entirely missed the true spirituality of God's law, a fact which drew upon their heads the anger and rebuke of our Lord.

The two incidents in this portion of our lesson reveal that under the cloak of earnestly observing the law of the sabbath, the Pharisees were actually covering their own hypocrisy and their hatred for Christ.

The accusations against the disciples because they had taken and eaten grain was not on the ground that they had stolen, for the law (Deut. 23:25) guaranteed that right to the one who passed through his neighbor's field. The Pharisees contended, however, that the disciples had worked on the sabbath in picking and hulling the grain.

The healing of the man with the withered arm revealed that back of their professed concern for the sabbath was a real hatred for Christ. It is an appalling thing that in the house of worship on the very sabbath day, these men, outwardly so religious, were plotting against our Lord.

"They watched him," and even so the enemies of the Cross watch us who are His followers. They are not concerned that the man with the withered arm, or with the withered soul may be helped, but only that they may find something to condemn.

Jesus cuts across human hypocrisy and hatred to declare that the true keeping of the sabbath is to do the work of God. No work of necessity (like plucking the grain) or of mercy (like healing the withered arm) is ever out of place on the day of rest.

A word of caution is needed, for some have sought to interpret this Scripture as providing biblical ground for doing all sorts of things on their day of rest. That day is for man's good, not for his destruction. His greatest good is served by rest, worship, spiritual development, Christian fellowship, and the doing of deeds of necessity and mercy.

The desecration of the Lord's Day in our time is a serious matter. Let us not contribute to its deterioration. America needs Sunday as a day of rest and worship.

Clover Apron for Gift That Pleases

AS PLEASING and gay as finding a real four-leaf clover—this pretty apron with the applique of green clover leaves. A bit more than half-a-yard of material will serve for the apron—scraps of light and dark dotted or figured green materials make the easily applied leaves. Use the paler green shade for the waistband. Use organdie for a "party" apron—muslin, percale or unbleached muslin for an everyday apron.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

NEW LENOX

Mrs. Dolores Anderson

Robert Gillette returned Monday from a week's business trip to Northern Minnesota.

Miss Madeline Fugett of Joliet spent the week with her sister, Mrs. Robert Gillette and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Anderson entertained Thursday afternoon, Oct. 7 at a party honoring the 2nd birthday of their daughter Dotte Jean.

Prizes were awarded to Betty Anderson, Patsy Ruettiger and David Novak. Pictures of the group were taken and refreshments were served at one large table covered with a white linen cloth. A large birthday cake decorated in pink and green, topped with two candles, centered the table. Candies and a favor for each child, also decorated the table. Many lovely gifts were presented the guest of honor. Guests were: Mrs. Dewey Ruettiger and children Patsy and Bobby, Mrs. Bruce Anderson and son George, Mrs. Gene Anderson and daughter Betty, and Mrs. Joseph Johnson and daughter Jacqueline Jean, all of Lockport; Mrs. Henry Rekau and son Dale, of Steger; Mrs. Ted Gould and sons Jerry and Donnie of Joliet. Mrs. Robert Gillette and daughter Charlyn Rae, Mrs. Joe Novak and children, David and Gene, Carol Collatz, Mrs. Gene Kost, Mrs. A. W. Walsh, Miss Beatrice Walsh and Dale Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tarrant are the proud parents of a son born Oct. 5 at Campus, Ill. The Tarrants who are residents of New Lenox are formerly from Campus. The new baby has been named Ronnie Allan.

Mrs. Joseph Johnson and daughter Jackie of Lockport and Mrs. Henry Rakau, and son Dale of Steger were dinner guests Thursday night of Mrs. Len Anderson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kohlhaugen spent Sunday in Bloomington, Ill., with Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kohlhaugen and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Moore and son Larry of Aurora were dinner guests Saturday night of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Strasberg and family.

Mrs. John Warning was hostess last Thursday afternoon to the members of the B-Square Club, at their first meeting this season. Airplane buncos was played and prizes were won by Mrs. Joseph Brisbane, Mrs. Mary Bentley, and Mrs. Len Warning. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Bentley will entertain the group in her home Nov. 4.

Mrs. Lew Deadmore and daughter Donna of Blue Island visited here Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Wm. Collatz.

Mrs. Mary MacFarland of Braidwood is visiting with her daughter Mrs. Ina Gurley.

Mrs. James Hayes was taken to St. Joseph hospital last Friday where she will undergo surgery sometime this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Redman and daughter Ferol, left today for Omaha, Neb. where they will visit with Mr. and Mrs. Leo White and family, former New Lenox residents.

Mrs. Henry Rekau and son Dale of Steger, spent a few days here last week with Mrs. Len Anderson and family.

Lieut. Richard J. Ludka, Jr. and his wife the former Betty June Henderson, are visiting with their parents. Lt. Ludka received all of his training in Texas graduating from the Army Air Force Advance School at Midland, Texas where he received his commission and wings as a bombardier.

Mrs. Robert Gillette and children and Miss Madeline Fugett, spent Sunday in Joliet with their parents Mr. and Mrs. James Fugett.

The following letters have been received by the New Lenox Servicemen's Club:

Sept. 30, 1943

Dear Friends:
Thank you loads for the delicious candies! I can't tell you how surprised I was when I received it. I can assure you that the girls and I appreciated it.

I don't know what we'd do without the Service Clubs. One doesn't realize how wonderful they are until he's in the service. I only hope the service organizations in other parts of the country are doing as good work as you are. It doesn't seem that way though. The girls were really surprised when I got such a nice box of candy from a Service Club. Thanks again.

Yours for Victory,
Dorothy Ziesemer, Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga.

Sept. 27, 1943

Dear Folks:
The box of candy that you sent me was sure a treat, and I want to thank you all very much for remembering me. There isn't much that I can say, only Thanks again.

Yours truly,
Pvt. Chas. Lorenz, Camp Pickett, Va.

After spending a nine day leave here with his parents, S 2-c Bud Barnett returned to the outgoing unit at Great Lakes, Ill. Monday morning from where he will be sent to a Naval Service Training school for the next two and a half months.

Mrs. James Hayes is seriously ill at St. Joseph's hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ned Barnett entertained at a family dinner Sunday in honor of their son S 2-c Bud Barnett. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. D. E. FitzPatrick and daughters Dolores, and Mrs. Helen Dillon of Joliet, and Miss Shirley Quinn.

A group of friends surprised Bud Barnett at a farewell party Sunday night. Games and dancing were enjoyed through out the evening. Refreshments were served. Guests were: Shirley Quinn, Mary, Theresa Sherwood, Theresa Brock, Dorothy Walker, Charlotte Beck, Eleanore Barnett, Paul Bockman, James Hayes, James Burns, Jack Lannen, and Paul Barnett.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rowswell entertained at a 5 o'clock dinner at their home Sunday honoring the first birthday of their daughter Janet. The occasion also honored the birthday of Mrs. Paul Rowswell. The evening was spent informally and gifts were presented to the honored guests. Attending the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Rowswell of Forrest Park, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rowswell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Morris, Mrs. Sarah Rowswell and the Ted Rowswell family.

Clearing the way for invasion

Before our invasion forces can make their landings, the lanes of approach must be swept clean of enemy mines. And this job is being done by the Navy men aboard minesweepers.

To provide for the United Nations' invasion plans to date and those of the future, American ship builders have achieved mass construction of these minesweepers by drawing on the tremendous energy of Electric Power. Portable electric skill saws, drills, grinders and welders are all used in the cutting, shaping and fitting of these sturdy seafaring craft. Powerful electric cranes are employed to install the engines and lift aboard the heavy unit parts.

Yes, Electric Power speeds the construction of minesweepers just as it speeds the production of planes, tanks, guns and the hundreds of other implements that are turned out in Northern Illinois.

Electric Power Speeds War Production

While YMS 179 slips down the ways to join the Navy, Electric Power is speeding the completion of other minesweepers under construction.

Electrically operated drills make quick work of boring holes. Like the skill saws, these portable drills can be carried to wherever they are needed.

Portable Electric skill saws help to cut days from production schedules of minesweepers which are constructed almost entirely of wood.

Electricity has gone to war—don't waste it!

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Arthur Lambrecht

The Louis Krusemark home was recently sold to C. J. O'Mara of Chicago who will take possession in March.

Corp. Lloyd Lühring of New Guinea, spent a recent furlough in Australia.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Swinford recently spent a few days at Charleston, Ill.

Pfc. Walter Cheney is now stationed in England. His address may be obtained at his home.

A meeting was held at the Village Hall Tuesday afternoon when Red Cross representatives and presidents of church and club groups gathered to consider the various courses offered by the Red Cross. Mrs. Erickson and Miss Green of the Will County Board of Health and Mrs. Carter of the Joliet branch of the Red Cross spoke of the possibility of organizing a group for a first aid class, home nursing course, canteen or nutrition classes. The head of the organizations represented will present the plan at future meetings.

The Frankfort Woman's Club will meet Wednesday evening October 20 at 7 p.m. at the school auditorium where they will do Red Cross work in connection with their meeting.

The monthly "coffee" served by the Women's Guild of St. Peter's church will be held one week sooner than the usual time. On Thursday October 21, the meeting will be held at the church, followed by Supper and a program of movies shown by a representative of the church institutions at Bensonville.

The regular monthly meeting of the village board was held at the village hall Monday evening. Plans for post war projects were discussed and government forms were filled out by members of the building committee, Henry Breidert, Alfred Zechin, and Emil Lenhardt. The possibility of a sewage disposal plant was considered. The Ryder property on the south side of the village which has been condemned was again the subject of much discussion and it is thought that immediate action will be taken to settle the controversy. Other routine business was transacted.

President Geo. Sangemeister of the Frankfort Fire Department and Clarence Warning are acting on the committee to find suitable gifts for local men in the service. It was agreed to spend two dollars for each gift and Stanley Johnson and Conrad Oetter were named on the committee to secure the addresses of these men.

The RNA met last Thursday evening in the Village hall. Mrs. Edw. Vollrath presided and announced the District convention which will be held at Joliet the afternoon and evening of October 19. A school of instruction will be held in the afternoon and in the evening Frankfort camp will participate in the Memorial Service. A rehearsal for this ritual will take place at the village hall Thursday evening with Mrs. Stella Daley, district deputy, in charge. Christmas boxes will be sent to sons of Royal Neighbors in the Armed forces.

An appeal for plasma was made for the Red Cross Blood Bank which will operate in Joliet beginning October 18. Several members volunteered.

The social hour was spent at cards with awards going to Mrs. Bertha Nieland and Mrs. Walter Baumgartner. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Melvin Fink and Mrs. Conrad Oetter. The next regular meeting will be held November 4.

Mrs. A. H. Roling, state president of the Home Bureau Federation was the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Will County Home Bureau held at Manhattan last Tuesday, October 5. The program opened with greetings by Mrs. Wm. Allen, county chairman. A community sing, led by Mrs. Norman Krapf of Green Garden unit, was followed by the pledge to the flag and the secretary's report by Mrs. James Patterson. L. W. Brahm and H. J. Schroeder brought greetings from the Farm Bureau. Reports by unit chairmen were read. Reports on the State Federation meeting were given by Mrs. J. W. Monroe and Mrs. Ed McDonald. Next was the report by the nominating committee and the ballot on the motion to change the by-laws. Mrs. Ray Walsh of the Busy Home Makers unit made special presentations. Luncheon was served by the ladies of the 1st Evangelical church.

Special music was presented by the Home Bureau Chorus under the direction of Mrs. Krapf, and vocal duets were presented by Mrs. Chester Steinberg and Mrs. Clarence Johnson. Mrs. Shirley Palmer sang and played her own accompaniment on the guitar. The meeting was resumed at 1:15 p.m. when Mrs. Roling spoke. Reports were made by the president and executive board, the home advisers and on the extension service and Home Bureaus, by Mrs. Madge Little. Mrs. Drew Castle of Joliet is the new co-chairman and was installed by Mrs. Roling.

Mrs. Amanda Mark presided at the WSCS meeting of the Methodist church last Thursday afternoon. About 25 members were present. Devotions were led by Mrs. Walter Carlson and Mrs. Walter Hedges. A brief memorial service was held in memory of Mrs. Henry Ross, a member whose death occurred last month. At the business meeting the annual Father and Son's banquet was discussed but no date has been set for the affair which is usually held in Nov. Hostesses were Mrs. Mark and Mrs. John Ried.

A Rally Day program was held at the Frankfort Methodist church Sunday. There were recitations by the members of the Junior Department and musical selections by an instrumental trio, Alan Hedges, Dick Lambrecht and Henry Heisner. Roger Hedges accompanied them. The following received perfect attendance pins first year, Roger and Alan Hedges, second year Jean Audrey Bettenhausen, Janet Bauch, LaVerne Mark and Mrs. Malek; third year, Mary Elizabeth Mark, Patsy Ann Heisner, Arthur Mark, Lillian and Gertrude Heath; Gordon Warning; fourth year, Verne Hossbach, fifth year, Doris Bauch; Walter Reimers, Henry Heisner, Milton Mark and Clinton Mark; sixth year, Joyce Bauch, Robert Rainford and Dick Lambrecht; seventh year, Ruth Bettenhausen and Lloyd Tewes; eighth year, Lorraine Bettenhausen, ninth year, Loretta Reimers and Norman Heisner; eleventh year, Dorothy Bettenhausen.

The Frankfort school will hold its annual school fair and penny social at the gym Friday evening, October 29 at 7:30 o'clock. Students will have a booth of school articles and handicraft for sale. Exhibits will include pets and hobbies and articles made by members of the Junior Red Cross. There will be a small admission charge and refreshments will be sold in the school kitchen. The office is invited to participate in this evening of entertainment for the entire family.

Miss Viola Lankenau, Mrs. Esther Heisner and Miss Annette Kohlhausen teachers at the Frankfort school will attend the Illinois Educators Association at Aurora today.

Miss Viola Lankenau, principal of the Frankfort school reports that the school is 100 percent in the Junior Red Cross enrollment with a collection totaling $6.28. A regular program of Red Cross activities will be carried on this year.

School District 152, the Hasenjaeger school, will hold its first PTA meeting of the year Friday evening October 15 at the school. Following the business meeting the public is invited to participate in card games sponsored by the association.

Mrs. Fred Beckman presided at the October meeting of the Busy Home Makers' Home Bureau meeting held at her home Friday afternoon. The roll call was responded to the number of quarts of fruit and vegetables each member canned. Mrs. Beckman presented the minor lesson, Etiquette of the Flag and the hostess was in charge of the Major Lesson, The Cause, Treatment and Prevention of the Common Cold. Mrs. Ray Walsh proposed that the group send some time doing Red Cross work when arrangements can be made. Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Wm. Lorenzen Nov. 3 at 2:00 p.m.

The Frankfort Woman's Club netted about $16 when they held a bake sale Saturday. Proceeds will be used to purchase gifts for Frankfort boys in service.

A social meeting of the members of the Youth Fellowship was held at the Methodist church Thursday evening. Games were played and refreshments were served. The young people are making plans to entertain members of St. Peter's Youth Fellowship at a Halloween party to be given at the cottage at the New Lenox Camp Grounds on Wednesday, October 27. The date was originally set for the 29th, but the annual school fair is to be held then.

Friday afternoon members of the Green Garden Home Bureau met at the home of Mrs. S. Beckman. The roll call was answered with "The Number of Quarts of Fruits and Vegetables Canned". Mrs. Edwin Dralle gave the minor lesson, "Etiquette of the Flag" and Mrs. Richard Ricards and Mrs. W. Schramm presented the major lesson, "The Treatment, Cause and Prevention of the Common Cold." Mrs. Ralph Smith was in charge of recreation. A two course luncheon was served. Mrs. Edith Huffman, Will County home advisor, will be present at the next meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Earl Bettenhausen Nov. 12.

Ralph Nieland who is about to join the army air force, has been the guest of honor at a number of farewell affairs. Thursday night he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Mrs. Anna Pfaff with ten guests present. Sunday evening, his mother, Mrs. Bertha Nieland, entertained 15 guests in his honor and Tuesday evening Mrs. Ruth Schramm entertained at a family dinner in his honor.

"Scat" was played in the home of Mrs. Lester Barton when she entertained members of the Jolly Nine Club at her home Thursday afternoon. Awards went to Mrs. Earl Bettenhausen, Miss Esther Bettenhausen and Mrs. Wendell Morrison. A luncheon was served by the hostess. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Clarence Johnson, Nov. 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Borms, recently married, were hosts at a chivari party at the Green Garden Town Hall Thursday evening. Pinchle was played and refreshments were served at a late hour.

Orville Schinkowski celebrated his birthday Thursday evening when his parents entertained at dinner in his honor. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Seeman, Miss Gladys Seeman and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller and family.

Pvt. Howard Seeman, stationed in Alaska has a new address.

Pvt. Lambert Vollrath writes that he is somewhere in the South Pacific area.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Fulton and sons of Chicago were guests at the H. P. Folkers home Friday evening.

Miss Wilma Mark is spending two weeks in Warsaw, Wis., where she has been sent by her employer on a special assignment. Miss Betty Mark also spent a few days in Wis.

Roger Christianson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Christiansen, celebrated his first birthday Friday last.

Dr. and Mrs. W. V. Hedges and sons spent Friday evening in Chicago attending a show.

Corp. Bill Batson returned to his station at Florence Air Base, at Florence, S. C., after a ten day furlough. During this time he was entertained at several dinner parties, the first one held Sunday, Oct. 3 at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Batson. Later that evening Corp. Batson's fiancée, Miss Lucille Topp, Miss Marie Batson, Wilbur Topp, Miss Lois Weitendorf, Gene Batson, Miss Annette Kohlhausen and Frank Fleck went to the Trianon to dance. On Thursday, Mrs. John Eisle of Kankakee entertained relatives at dinner in his honor. Friday evening he was a dinner guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Topp.

YOU CAN'T BLUFF NATURE

Nature is calling the bluff of the socialists who promoted the construction of government-owned hydro electric power dams in the Southwest, under the pretense that they were "flood control" projects. One such, the Pensacola Dam on the Grand River in Oklahoma, furnishes a typical example. Like other dams of its kind, about fifty per cent of the cost was met by the government on the excuse that Federal aid was justified to cover flood control. The Congressmen and senators, as well as the state government of Oklahoma, promised the people that the project would prevent floods. But, according to a report submitted to the Tulsa Chamber of Commerce, "For the second consecutive year the people have lost millions of dollars in property and in exchange for what? That the Pensacola property be permitted to earn from the sale of additional prime power about $118,000 annually."

Behind this tragic incident lies the whole iniquitous story of the Federal power socialization program. Thru out the country dams have been thrown across rivers, and paid for by money taken from all the taxpayers—taxpayers who are told, just as the people of Oklahoma were told that these dams will prevent floods. The simple fact is that they cannot prevent floods where they are kept full of water to turn the hydro generators which the politicians claim are "incidental" to flood control. When the streams rise, the flood goes merrily on its way over the spillways because there is no place to catch the water.

If the old saying that you can't fool all of the people all of the time is still true, it is about time the power socialists took to their heels. They have done a lot of fooling and sooner or later they will be asked to make good.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

It kinda makes an ordinary duck scratch his dome, this morning to night talk about where somebody has a great plan of making our country over—overhauling it complete. You would think that Jefferson and the others were a grand flop and didn't know beans about organizing a country. Here we are, producing more guns and ammunition than the rest of the whole world combined but they still say we gotta let 'em make us over The Land of the Free has carbon in its valves, they say.

The folks sponsoring this overhaul and who crave to make our land into something where everybody leans on the Govt. versus on themselves, have not come up the hard way. None of the present fix-everything-pretty crew ever crossed the icy Delaware in a boat in the dark. Washington figured that each person should profit in proportion to how much he cared to sweat.

To make a long story short, it is like Confucius say. He say, "Sometimes Engine need valve grind, sometimes just Engineer."

Yours with the low down,
Jo Serra

A Night of Fun

Tickets for "One Night of Fun", the mammoth stage show and dance to be presented under the sponsorship of the Denver Sanatorium at the Chicago Stadium October 20, were made available to the general public today at committee headquarters, 343 South Dearborn Street Room 718, according to Samuel L. Workman, chairman of the Ticket committee.

Ernest Byfield, co-managing director of the Hotel Sherman, who heads the Patrons committee which has charge of the box seat sales has indicated that "already many interested persons have sent in for reservations, and I would suggest that those desiring box seats please on purchasing them early."

The evening's festivities have been expressly set aside for the entertainment of men and women in the armed services as guests. This is made possible by the purchase of tickets by the public at large who then indicate their willingness to have all or part of their tickets set aside for distribution to the armed services. Colonel John B. Reynolds, who is chairman of the committee disbursing these tickets explained that his group is already functioning to see that they are equitably distributed.

The Denver Sanatorium, which is a non-profit, non-sectarian medical institution giving free care to tubercular patients without regard for race or creed, will receive the net proceeds of the event. The institution is maintained by donations from people throughout the country and through such fund raising activities as "One Night of Fun."

WE WORK FOR VICTORY TOO!

WE OBSERVE ALL TRAFFIC RULES

A new series of "We Work for Victory Too!" posters is being distributed during October to more than 38,000 classrooms in the Illinois and Indiana territory of the Chicago Motor club.

More than a million school children in this territory are urged to observe all traffic rules in an endeavor to reduce accidents, which not only are unnecessary and tragic but which divert time of doctors and nurses and hospital space needed for the war-time emergency.

Instruction sheets accompanying the poster help teachers use the safety lessons to best advantage for various groups, such as pupils of different ages and grades and in rural or municipal areas.

Thank you!... Thank you!... Thank you!

The men and women of our telephone team are doing their best to please you—in spite of serious war shortages that make perfect service difficult and at times impossible.

Through it all, we are getting many kind words from telephone users, war-plant officials and government agencies, high-ranking officers of the Army and Navy, railroads and newspapers and training schools, the FBI and the USO and others. Some are from soldiers and sailors who have had special help from Illinois Bell operators or other telephone workers.

You may be sure that our people will continue to carry on with the same efficiency. They know that fine telephone service here at home is one of the nation's vital war assets.

BUD, playing grown-up, typifies the millions who responded to the call for volunteers to guard the home front. They studied first aid, fire fighting, plane types. They kept lonely vigil at isolated posts. They took their jobs with deadly seriousness—showed the world that America knew the meaning of "Alert!"

America's railroads know the meaning of that word, too.

Because of their alertness munitions plants operated at capacity; fighting men and materials moved with great dispatch; our entire war machine meshed and moved smoothly and swiftly.

ROCK ISLAND'S Program of Planned Progress typifies the alertness so vital to the continued efficient operation of America's railroads. For it visualizes improvements—what is to be done, when and how. With the transition from war to peace, ROCK ISLAND will be ready!

As yesterday—and today—so tomorrow ROCK ISLAND'S sole purpose is to provide the finest in transportation.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Knierem attended a farwell party in Blue Island Friday night honoring his brother who leaves soon for the army.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Marks of Alpine Heights returned Monday from Milwaukee, Wis. where they had spent several days with the former's brother.

A family dinner was held in the Geo. Marti home Sunday in honor of their son John, S 2-c who was home from the Naval Training Station at Farragut, Idaho on a furlough. John returned Monday.

A family reunion was held in the Wm. Semmler home Sunday honoring Mrs. Emilie Campbell of Seattle, Wash., who is visiting in this section with her brother and sisters and other relatives. Present were: Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Oestreich, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Oestreich and daughter Patsy, and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Deadmore of Joliet.

Mr. Wm. Myrick, formerly of Mokena, now of Joliet, has been a patient in the Edw. Hines Memorial hospital in Chicago where he was scheduled to undergo surgery Monday.

Mrs. Marie Shevlin and daughter Florence of Chicago spent the week end with their son and brother Henry Shevlin and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooper and family and Mrs. Barney Hostert and family, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Haag and family, and Mrs. Hugo Nelt-hammer and daughter were among the relatives who gathered in the Harrison Haley home in Kempton, Ill. to welcome his son Lt. Merle Haley who had returned on a 14-day furlough from England where he had been since Jan. 13. He is to be stationed in a camp in Florida. He is an electrical engineer and is in the army signal corp.

Mrs. Elmer Cooper, Mrs. Harold

Cooper and Miss Celia Cooper attended the chicken supper of the Women's Guild of the Methodist church in Orland Park last Thursday.

St. John's Women's Guild will meet in the church Thursday afternoon October 21. Members serving on the luncheon committee are: Mrs. Herman Lorenz, Mrs. Carrie Mattes, Mrs. Lena Hacker, Mrs. Alice Maue, Mrs. Rose Knudson and Mrs. Ida Mancke.

The Afternoon Pinochle club met with Mrs. Dora Roesner Wednesday afternoon.

Lt. and Mrs. Berl Needham arrived in Mokena from S. Carolina Sunday evening as Lt. Needham was being transferred to Camp McCoy, Wis. Mrs. Needham will remain in Mokena until her husband can secure an apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Stermer have received word from their son Kenneth that he has been placed in the SeaBees and is located in Virginia.

ATTENTION: Just a reminder to be sure and give any change of address of your service men to Mrs. Harold Homering, Tel. Mokena, 3284 or any member of the Auxiliary to the Mokena VFW.

Mrs. Homering is typing the addresses of your service men on the paper wrappers, so be sure that she gets those change of addresses or the boys of Mokena will not be getting the News-Bulletin.

A group of relatives gathered Tuesday evening in the August Werner home to surprise Mr. and Mrs. August Long on their third wedding anniversary and also as a farewell for Mr. Long who left Thursday morning for Camp Grant. Earlier in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Long and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baker and son were guests at a chicken dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hentsch.

Mrs. Wm. Lowe, while shopping recently in the Kresge Dollar store in Joliet, had the misfortune of having her hand bag taken by a shop lifter. It contained her annual railroad pass and the family ration books besides money. It was reported to the store management immediately and to the police. An ad was in the Joliet paper and in a few days a party called her who had said they had found the bag in the Ducker's Store wash room.

When Mrs. Lowe claimed the lost article all its contents were intact except the money. She is thankful for the return of her pass and ration books.

The grand champion steer at the Will County 4H club show this year will compete for further honors at the forthcoming Chicago Market Fat Show and Carlot Competition, to be held at the Chicago Stock Yards November 29 to December 2.

This steer, a purebred Hereford owned by Thomas G. Morgan, a 17 year old Beecher 4H boy will be exhibited by his owner in the junior classes of the Chicago show, which will take the place of the regular International Live Stock Exposition cancelled this year as a war measure.

Other recent entries for the same classes from Will county include bay beeves listed by Donna and Jack Chestnut, 14 and 16 years old, respectively, of Mokena. They will each exhibit a Hereford calf.

Mrs. August Pfeiffer received severe burns to her right hand one day this week when he accidentally held a hot coffee pot handle.

Dear Mr. Semmler:
I want to thank you for sending me the News-Bulletin. Sure enjoy reading about what's happening back home. They have been moving me around so much that yesterday I received the Bulletin dated Sept. 19.

I happened to come across Christ Hentsch address and I'm only 82 miles from where he is. We take men out there almost every day. Its sure warm here, yesterday it was 119 in the shade.

I'm fine and hope this finds you all well in Mokena. My address is: Pvt. E. Schoeneck, ASN 367374-70, Co. B, 45 Repl. Bn. 11 Repl. Depot, Indio Branch, APO 182 care postmaster Los Angeles, Cal. Fort Devens, Mass.

October 3, 1943

Dear Mr. Semmler:
I sincerely wish to express my gratitude of appreciation to you and the Ladies Auxiliary of Wm. Martin Post 725 for the News-Bulletin which is being sent to me.

There are many that I like to keep up with that many a letter could not tell of. At the present I am in good health and can say the army doctors can keep a person that way if anybody can.

I don't think a single man can find anything more enjoyable than the Army life for its sure is different and interesting.

Yesterday I was out on my first day bivouac and we sure had nice weather, "nice and wet", it was rain all day long and it was almost cold enough to freeze to ice, a polar bear would enjoy the thirty five and forty below weather they have up here in winter.

I guess this will bring an end to this letter. I would appreciate it if this letter could be put in the paper. I will write again when time permits.

Pvt. Nick Heiman.

WOMEN'S SERVICE CLUB NEWS

Mrs. Leslie Clark
Our Purchasing committee reports that almost all the articles have been purchased for our Xmas boxes and will be ready for wrapping at the next meeting Nov. 1.

We want to make a correction on last week's article concerning the addresses we asked to have sent in. We stated that in order for "the boys to receive their News-Bulletin and Christmas parcels on time their latest address was necessary." It should have read, "in order that their Christmas boxes reach them on time, it would be necessary for us to have their correct address."

The Women's Service Club does not have anything to do with the sending or mailing of the News-Bulletin to our service men. It is done entirely by the Auxiliary to the VFW who pay the postage and wrapping cost. Mr. Wm. Semmler, Editor of the News-Bulletin furnishes the papers. We do however, co-operate in the exchange of addresses with Mrs. Harold Homering whom we think is doing a splendid job of typing the wrappers for the papers.

We wish to thank the Civic Association for their contribution of $82.79 which we received last week. It was the net proceeds of the Bingo party which was given for the benefit of the Service Club.

We also wish to thank Robinson's Tavern for the contribution of $48.00 which was the proceeds of the benefit baseball game given for the Service Club.

And last but by no means least, we want to thank Every Person in the community who in anyway has helped the Service Club in their efforts to let our boys know that the people at home are thinking of them.

We received the following letter of thanks from one of our boys. Pvt. Earl Schoeneck who is stationed at Indio, Cal.:

Dear Ladies of the Service Club:
I received the birthday card and gift you sent me. I want to express my thanks for sending it to me. It sure came in handy and the right time. That's one good thing about home. Someone is always thinking about us boys in the service.

It's quite warm here, but after you have been in the desert a while you get used to it. The food is a lot better than where I was. Have had it pretty easy since I've been in but you might as well take advantage of it while you can. I'll have to close. My candle is almost burned to the last drop.

Yours truly,
Earl

PEAKING SPORTS

By Bob McShane

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

ONLY one thing is certain during the current football season—spectator interest is as great as ever.

This was proved quite definitely on the opening day of the college gridiron season. Four games in the Midwest that were open for civilian patronage, and Notre Dame at Pittsburgh, drew a total of 176,996, or an average of 35,399—much better than had been expected or predicted.

But that is about the only aspect of the game this year that can be taken for granted. Most of the others are surrounded by question marks.

The schools which did not benefit from the navy's V-12 programs were expected to furnish comparatively little in the way of top-flight competition. However, the strength of these civilian teams in the Western conference came as a pleasant surprise. These teams include Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio State and Minnesota.

Navy Power

These teams were not bracketed with Northwestern, Purdue and Michigan. Their manpower resources were too great. Particularly was this true of Michigan.

Elroy Hirsch of Wisconsin and Bill Daley of Minnesota were two of the country's finest backs last fall. Both are fast, powerful ball carriers. Michigan got both men this fall in the navy assignments, and with them the Wolverines got the best backfield in the country.

Bill Daley

But the civilian teams crossed up many of the crystal ball experts. Indiana gave Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern coach, a bad case of the jitters. The Wildcats didn't measure up to expectations against a surprising Indiana eleven. The Hoosier line handled the Wildcats' ground game quite effectively. A youngster named Bob Hoernschmeyer, who would have been an ineligible freshman under normal conditions, was the mainstay of a fighting Indiana team.

A strong Wisconsin team, rebuilt after losing to Marquette, played Camp Grant all even for 59 minutes and 55 seconds before losing by the margin of a field goal. Minnesota rolled over Missouri, and gave definite notice that they would make more than a gesture of the present season.

Minnesota is always a team to watch. The Gophers are strong for size—and plenty of power—but they never sacrifice speed. Their record is one of the best.

Past Champions

Ohio State, national champions of 1942, didn't fare too well when they lost their opener to the Iowa Sea-hawks, 28 to 13.

Purdue established themselves among the powerhouses when they beat Marquette by three touchdowns and a shut-out. Observers state that Tony Butkovich, Illinois transfer, is a much better full-back than last year and may be one of the very best before the season ends.

Purdue doesn't play either Northwestern or Michigan, and has an excellent chance to tie for the Big Ten title.

The basic reason for the good showing of the civilian teams is that they are well coached. Because of the civilian status of many of their players, they have had considerable practice time. This was quite evident as they made their debuts. And it was just as evident that Northwestern, for instance, went into the Indiana tussle with far too little practice. Because of navy regulations, that problem is almost impossible of solution. Navy work must come first.

It is obvious, of course, that the status of the civilian teams may change overnight. Those teams will lose talent to the services as the season advances.

All in all, the football picture is muddled. But interest in the game has not slackened. The merry click of the turnstiles every Saturday afternoon is ample proof.

SPORTS SHORTS

1. The University of Michigan has had a baseball team since 1886.

2. Owners of Count Fleet estimate that the horse's injured ankle cost them $250,000 in purses this summer.

3. Wilford Wehrle, one-time Western amateur golf champion, does everything left-handed except play golf.

4. Lloyd Waner, former National league outfielder, is playing softball on an Oklahoma City war plant team.

Spotlight by GRANTLAND RICE

IN GETTING ready for his next meeting with Bob Montgomery, Beau Jack is concentrating on some plan that will keep his jaw away from Montgomery's right hand.

It was a fast and unexpected chin tapper in the first round that won for Montgomery in their first meeting.

As Beau Jack was in the middle of a busy fusillade, Montgomery suddenly whipped one to the point of Beau's chin and from that point on the Augusta whirligig was never quite the same.

Beau Jack admits that it hurt him plenty—that it "didn't do me no good."

For a few seconds Beau had an idea that in some way he had misplaced his dome of thought. He would just as soon not have this action duplicated when they meet early in November.

Another Right Hand

Jack Dempsey recently recalled another right-hand grenade that did him little good many years ago.

I had just asked him the hardest punch he ever took.

"There isn't any argument about that," Dempsey said. "It came from Firpo's right hand at the start of the first round. I'll never forget that one."

"I knew Firpo was dangerous, so I made the mistake of trying to win with the first punch I threw. This was a left hook. But in my over-eagerness I threw the punch before I was set and missed."

"That left me wide open. I tried to step backward and actually thought I was out of range. But Firpo had a rubber right arm. His big fist kept moving and it landed just under my left eye, up around the cheek bone. If he had connected with the chin I might be dreaming yet. As it was I was knocked to my knees and I honestly thought part of my head had been blown away. The guy couldn't box, but he could certainly hit. I still hadn't recovered when he caught me again and I went through the ropes. They say I broke a lot of rules in that fight. Maybe I did. I was trying to keep from getting killed after that first punch I took and if there had been an axe around I would have used that."

I recalled one odd angle of the Dempsey-Firpo roundup, the most sensational of all ring battles, which the old Mauler remembered.

I had talked with Bill Brennan, a rough and tough campaigner who had just lost to Firpo.

"That guy," Brennan told me, "throws rocks. Look at my head." Bill's head was full of lumps.

Before the big fight I went up with Bob Edgren, one of the best of all boxing writers, to see Dempsey.

I told Dempsey what Brennan had told me—that Firpo had a rubber right hand that could nail an opponent who thought he was two or three feet out of range.

"I remember that now," Jack said, "but I didn't believe it at the time. I know or at least I knew what range is and I figured that if I could keep two or three feet away he couldn't hurt me, even if he landed."

But old Bill Brennan was right.

"After I had missed that left hook I had enough speed left to swing back out of range. Sure, I saw it coming, but I never figured the bum had a brick in his hand. It kept on coming. And suddenly I thought I'd lost part of my head. He just happened to hit me too high. I hate to think what would have happened if that big fist had landed two inches lower."

Yost and Michigan

A letter from Hurry-Up Yost, Michigan's famous coach for nearly 40 years, reports on the Wolverine machine.

It is also a reminder that a husky young fellow by the name of Yost came to Ann Arbor back in 1901 to start Michigan on her upward football march that has lasted the greater part of four decades. Yost came to Michigan from Stanford that long ago fall, bringing along a fellow by the name of Willie Heston, 190 pounds of speed and high explosive.

From 1901 through 1905 Yost's Michigan teams lost only one game, a 2 to 0 defeat from Stag's Chicago Maroons.

In those five years Michigan's fast, smashing attack ran up something in the neighborhood of 3,000 points.

Through those five years Michigan had such stars as Heston, Snow, Gregory, White, Curtis, McGugin, Oaty Graham, Redden, Rheinschild, Herrstein, Sweeley, "Boss" Weeks, Germany Schulz, Garrels—the Hammonds, in fact probably the greatest group any one college team ever drew together—great runners and kickers working back of a giant line that averaged well above 200 pounds.

Yost came up from West Virginia. When West Virginia met a fine Lafayette team, Yost stayed with Lafayette.

Farm Topics

Plowing Aerates Soil, Stimulates Reactions

Lower Yields Caused By Excessive Cropping

While American farmers have undoubtedly plowed their soil too much in the past, the problem of declining crop yields is not due to excessive plowing, but to the removal of fertility without returning plant food to the soil, according to Dr. William A. Albrecht, chairman of the soils department of the University of Missouri.

"During the importation of the plowing idea and the application of the plowing practice in the United States, our ancestors did not recognize their transition to soils that are mainly silt loams, which demand less plowing than European clay loams. They failed to appreciate the connection plowing might have with their movement from regions where rainfall comes regularly in small showers to those where a large share of the rains are torrential. This shift from maritime to continental climate was not appreciated until much plowing under torrential downpours caused erosion of almost catastrophic magnitude over our most productive areas."

"Yes, we have plowed too much, as our hindsight forcefully tells us. But surely our foresight is better than to allow refusal to plow in the future."

"Plowing does aerate the soil, as any soil microbiologist will testify. As a consequence of the change of atmosphere in the soil, and because of the stirring by the mold-board plow, there is new 'life.' The soil is a factory in which much energy is expended. It is transforming many substances, oxidizing or burning tons of carbon dioxide, sulfur to sulfur dioxide, ammonia to nitrate and other similar combustions. Were this performance not proceeding in the soil, life on the globe would soon become extinct. Facts such as these are disregarded as part of the soil's contribution to crop production by him who would not plow. But continued and excessive cropping without paying back the soil's plant food debt, reduces the output of the nutrients left over in soluble form by microbial activity."

Rotation grazing increases the nutritional value of pasture plants, as thicker turf results from using only a small part of pasture area at a time. High-producing cows have shown increased yield when grazed in this way.

Ground Wheat Preserves Grass Silage Well

Wheat is just as satisfactory a preservative for grass silage as corn, says C. B. Bender of Rutgers U.

Describing how to use wheat in silage making, he says, "The grain should be ground fine and applied at the rate of 200 to 250 pounds per ton of green alfalfa as it goes through the throat of the chopper. With mixtures of grasses and legumes, use 150 to 200 pounds per ton depending upon moisture content. The higher the moisture content the more ground grain is needed. With timothy or green cereal grains, add 100 to 150 pounds of the ground grains per ton."

"It is not difficult to apply the grain," Bender says. "Build a hopper over the throat of the chopper large enough to hold 100 pounds of ground grain. Have a sliding panel at the base of the hopper which will regulate the flow of grain. It is advisable to brace one side of the hopper to the side of the ensilage cutter so that the vibration will help the flow of grain."

"Grain is more than just a preservative. It reduces seepage, increases the total nutrient content of the silage and increases the protein content. It is also a convenient way of feeding part of the grain ration to cows."

Rural Briefs

The department of agriculture has estimated that two billion man-hours of labor will be needed to harvest farm crops during the next few months.

Onions, after being harvested, should be well dried before going into storage for the winter. This process is necessary to prevent Botrytis neck rot.

Walter Winchell

Ballad for Americans:

If you could buy a spot where you could see

How Nature had been lavish in its art,

If you could buy a place where Liberty

Is ever dearest to the human heart . . .

If you could buy the road to happiness

With little homes that bordered on the lane,

It would not take a fool a second guess

To know that you would buy and buy again;

If you could buy contentment through the years

And love that grows from fine and decent things,

If you could buy an armistice from tears

And all the grief and woe that battle brings—

Oh, if you could, how quickly you'd respond,

And yet, what else is bought with every bond?

—DON WAHN

The Magic Lanterns: James Cagney blew in with "Johnny Come Lately," his debut as an impresario, and he needn't worry about quitting a good job. He is breezy and tough as the tramp reporter who Page Ones the town's stuffer goniffs into being better boys. Grace George and Ed McNamara are part of the assets . . . Robert Donat, who is paid off in sighs where Sinatra collects shrieks, comes back in "The Adventures of Tartu," which is a stylish dish. He plays a British officer risking his precious neck in Czechoslovakia. The best place to view the tale is from the edge of your seat—as if you had any choice.

Valerie Hobson is the girl . . . Abbott and Costello go in for winter sports in "Hit the Ice," and being the kind of comics they are, you know what they hit it with . . . Pola Negri, who was strictly a sad-faced sufferer in her heyday, comes back in a frilly item called "Hi Diddle Diddle," with Martha Scott, Adolphe Menjou and June Haver. You'll laugh—how much being up to you . . . Richard Dix vs. Jesse James is the theme of "The Kansan." This rambunctious Western, full of shoot-'em irons, straight whiskey and a trace of jive, is generally satisfactory.

Midtown Vignette: She is the young wife of a British naval officer . . . We overheard her talking with a stranger at the fountain of a midtown drug store . . . While she fed her baby a malted . . . "They sent me over here to visit him a little while," she said. "He had never seen the baby" . . . She was a soap-and-water type of girl—very little makeup, and pretty . . . The stranger asked about clothing rationing in England . . . "I don't mind," she answered, "I've been wearing this skirt and blouse for two years every day" . . . As she started to go, the stranger pressed a ten-spot into her hand . . . "Buy something for the baby," he said, "and yourself" . . . "Oh, thank you very much," was the reply, "now I may get a new blouse."
